Charges in Nortel case

Former top execs accused of fraud

In a scene more reminiscent of high-profile U.S. fraud prosecutions against top executives from Enron to WorldCom, former Nortel chief executive Frank Dunn walked past a phalanx of cameras yesterday after facing criminal charges in a Newmarket courtroom.

Dunn is charged with two counts of falsifying accounts, three counts of being involved in issuing a false prospectus used to sell shares, and two counts of fraud affecting the public securities market.

Facing similar charges are former Nortel chief financial officer Douglas Beatty and former controller Michael Gollogly. All three were released on bail.

After years of seemingly endless civil fraud allegations, investigations, lawsuits and multimillion-dollar settlements over the accounting scandal at Nortel Networks Corp., yesterday's move by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police marks the first criminal charges to be laid.

Kevin Harrison, with the RCMP's Greater Toronto Area Integrated Market Team (IMET), insisted the arrests will send a strong message.

"Canadian law enforcement has the capacity to monitor (criminal) activity, identify potential offences that are ongoing within the markets and subsequently engage in investigations that ultimately lead to prosecution and incarceration," Harrison said.

Gun-drug 'pipeline' raided

Handguns destined for Toronto streets were swapped for drugs in a lucrative Canada-U.S. "pipeline" run by a sophisticated, white-collar organized crime network, Toronto police said yesterday.

Black-market Viagra, cocaine, and guns were seized and 27 arrests were made by police in a massive sweep of communities across the GTA yesterday. Officers and Emergency Task Force members raided residences on well-to-do Bellair Street in Yorkville, as well as in the Yonge and Sheppard area, as part of the crackdown.

"We are shocked by the extent of the criminal enterprise that we have uncovered in this investigation," said Toronto police Chief Bill Blair at a media conference held after the raids yesterday.

Approximately 50,000 pills of black-market Viagra, 47 guns, large quantities of cocaine, heroin and marijuana and 18 vehicles were seized in yesterday's pre-dawn raids.

Ontario's rent increase guideline third-lowest ever

The provincial government has set the 2009 rent increase guideline at 1.8 per cent, the third lowest rate in Ontario's history.

The rent increase guideline is the maximum amount by which a landlord can increase a tenant's rent to reflect inflation.

The new rate jumped slightly from last year's 1.4 per cent, which was the lowest rent increase guideline on record. The 2009 guideline applies to rent increases that occur between Jan. 1 and Dec. 31, 2009.

The figure is based on the Ontario Consumer Price Index, a measure of inflation calculated by Statistics Canada. The first rent increase guideline was calculated in 1975 at 8 per cent.

Mourners pay last respects

Funeral held for Oliver Martin, shot last Friday

One by one, Oliver Martin's three sisters pulled free from a group embrace yesterday, each lifting her head as if to shake off the pain before rising to the podium to bid a last farewell to her brother.

Ally, Georgie and Syd Martin each tried valiantly to compose herself in front of a crowd of about 500 mourners. Weary from grief, they filled the stark, modest pews at Rosedale Presbyterian Church and spilled out into the foyer and courtyard.

Each sister succeeded for a moment to talk about Martin without crying. But, as they neared the end of their speeches, referring to their brother as someone who wouldn't dwell on sorrow, but push past it, they lost their emotional foothold and broke into choking sobs.

"I just want you to know that I love you so much," said Ally. "I'm so proud of you."

A day earlier, many of the same people came to Rosedale United Church, a short distance away, to pay their last respects to Martin's lifelong friend, Dylan Ellis. The two men, both 25, were gunned down last week in a shocking and seemingly unprovoked attack. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

817 guns linked to crime

Of 2,603 firearms recovered by Toronto police last year, 817 were classed as "crime guns" — meaning they had been used (or were suspected to have been used) in a crime, were illegally owned or had the serial number obliterated.

About 45 per cent, or 366, of the 817 crime guns were pistols or revolvers, weapons Mayor David Miller wants to ban, along with evicting gun clubs from city property and restricting the manufacture and assembly of guns in the city.

"There are far too many handguns, as is evidenced by the violence we've seen in Toronto most recently," police Chief Bill Blair told the police services board yesterday. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Panel pushes plan to curb dropouts

Despite complaints from parents that it is too slow and lacks detail, the Toronto District School Board should adopt a plan to cut dropout rates among struggling students, says a committee of trustees.

Last night, the committee recommended adopting targets to cut the dropout rates among struggling groups of students by 5 per cent each year for five years, including reducing the steep 40 per cent dropout rate among black students to 15 per cent by 2013.

The new Urban Diversity Strategy, to be voted on by all trustees next Wednesday, would aim to make all intermediate and high schools across the city more sensitive to the demographic roadblocks often facing students of differing backgrounds.

GTA resident convicted in death of autistic sister

She kept her severely autistic sister Tiffany Pinckney locked in a basement that eventually became her crypt, depriving her of food and water for long periods of time.

For that, Allison Cox, 33, yesterday paid a steep price, sentenced to nine years in prison for manslaughter.

Cox

Justice Joseph Fragomeni described the circumstances of the case as among "the worst" he has ever experienced as a trial judge.

Pinckney weighed just 84½ pounds when she was found lying dead on a filthy carpet in the feces and urine-strewn basement of her residence in Mississauga.

Pinckney died around April 2 from malnutrition, evidence at trial indicating she had been deliberately starved to death.

The Mississauga mother of three young children pleaded not guilty and remained defiant about her innocence even after her conviction.

City seeking curbs on spending habits

A proposed new office expense policy would prohibit Toronto city councillors from claiming alcohol for business meals, cap the amount they can spend for those dinners at $500 a year, and put an itemized list of their spending habits online for the public to see.

alcohol provision

» The alcohol provision is perhaps the biggest change. Last year, councillors Karen Stintz and Brian Ashton and the mayor himself said they favoured alcohol being removed from the list of items councillors could expense.

The long-awaited policy, released yesterday, will be on the agenda for next week's executive committee meeting at city hall, and follows a series of news reports last December that detailed questionable expenses by councillors — including two bunny suits for an Easter Parade in the Beach, an espresso machine, a limo rental, and a late-night taxi ride to Bolton.

The items were spent out of councillors' office budgets, which are capped at $53,100 a year.

The new 66-page policy, which still requires council approval next month, is based on several guiding principles, including: "The public expects public funds to be used prudently."

Scientist wins Kyoto Prize

A Toronto cell biologist has become the first Canadian to win the prestigious Kyoto Prize, Japan's equivalent of the Nobel.

Dr. Tony Pawson, a scientist at the Samuel Lunenfeld Research Institute of Mount Sinai Hospital, joins the ranks of such international luminaries as primatologist Jane Goodall, American pop artist Roy Lichtenstein, and author and linguist Noam Chomsky — all of whom have won the coveted award.

Pawson, a world leader in his field, is being honoured for his work in human cell communication, which is vital in understanding how to fight diseases such as cancer. Many have praised his work, saying he will have a significant impact on mankind — perhaps one day helping to find one of the keys to cure cancer.

The 55-year-old scientist said he was "stunned, surprised and excited" by news of the award, which comes with a 50-million yen (or about $470,000 Canadian) cheque.

Home symbolized fall from grace

Former Nortel CEO cut sale price of residence

Frank Dunn's fall from grace is perhaps best symbolized in the bricks and mortar of what was to be his dream home.

An Oakville resident, Dunn paid $4.3 million cash for a waterfront property he intended to build on in 2002, less than a year after he replaced John Roth as CEO.

But after a difficult tenure at Nortel, he put his 10,800-square-foot, six-bedroom estate up for sale in the suburb west of Toronto.

The home, on 1.6 acres with 56 metres of lakefront, was designed in a French-chateau style with a separate three-car garage. It also included a boat slip, dock and boathouse.

"It's an incredible home built on a spectacular piece of property," said Brad Miller, a broker with Century 21 in Oakville who specializes in high-end real estate.

Miller said the scarcity of waterfront lots and Dunn's choice of a quality builder helped to sell the home.

The asking price was originally $10.7 million for a house that had only been completed to the drywall. Millions more would be needed to finish the interior.

He later dropped the price to $9.5 million. The unfinished home was eventually purchased in 2005 for $8,881,000, according to property records. The sale went to a Royal Bank of Canada executive.

Dunn still has a property in Oakville. In 2003, he took a $1.5-million mortgage on his home near the lake. Homes on Dunn's street range from $2.7 million to $5 million, according to real estate sources.

Vaughan mayor faces possible dismissal

Audit finds Linda Jackson exceeded election spending

Vaughan Mayor Linda Jackson faces possible dismissal from office after a court-ordered audit of her 2006 campaign expenses and contributions from her hotly contested race against Michael Di Biase found a slew of apparent contraventions of the Municipal Elections Act.

The audit, paid for by the City of Vaughan and conducted by Ken Froese of LECG Canada Ltd., found Jackson's actual campaign expenses exceeded her legal spending limit of $120,419 by at least $12,356, or 10 per cent.

The auditors say that amount could almost double if what they believed to be unreported contributions in kind at various election events — but couldn't prove — are later verified. They also found at least five instances where associated companies made donations that exceeded the normal $750 donation limit per company.

Stepping up for the march

Enza taking on grand marshal duties at parade

By BRIAN TOWIE
Metro Toronto

You wouldn't think it to speak with her, but Enza "Supermodel" Anderson is apprehensive about leading this year's Pride Parade.

Besides the fact that Metro's Hot Ticket and On The Move columnist has huge shoes (with five-inch heels) to fill as grand marshal of Pride 2008, she says she needs to gather her strength to properly represent the city's large gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgendered population.

"It takes a lot of balls, but I couldn't do it any other way," says Anderson, who is openly transgendered. "People who aren't in this community don't understand the courage it takes to come out and say, 'We are who we are.' It's a struggle for any community that constantly has to push that envelop to say, 'We're just as human and we're equal.'"

But the Toronto socialite who frequents an average of 200 parties a year says don't fret; the opportunity to look fabulous is far too great for her not to be "on" when the occasion arrives.

"It's exciting that there's going to be this wonderful recognition and that people are jumping on the bandwagon," says Anderson. "I'm looking forward to the day and I'm looking forward to wearing my beautiful dress. I'm looking forward to the big day of being a glamorous supermodel in front of a million people."

Anderson also acknowledges the responsibility of her role for those outside the community, saying she wants to raise awareness about homophobia and its roots.

"Hate's taught," she said. "If parents are homophobic, then they're going to teach their kids to be homophobic. I think by being present as grand marshal, people will say, 'Here's Enza, who has a column in a major mainstream newspaper, and she's proud to be leading the parade."

BRIAN TOWIE/METRO TORONTO

Metro's social columnist Enza "Supermodel" Anderson is leading this year's Pride Parade.

And who better to lead the parade than someone who has made a career out of challenging boundaries? Along with the honour, this year marks the 10th anniversary of Anderson introducing herself into the political arena, when she publicly kissed former mayor Mel Lastman shortly after the city was amalgamated in 1998.

"I was the first drag queen in Toronto to kiss a major politician," she says. "It was my introduction to politics and it's come full circle."

Since then, her civic career boasts a 2000 run for mayor that garnered 13,585 votes from a $300 campaign budget and an attempt to helm the ultra-right-wing Canadian Alliance (now the federal Conservative Party), much to the roiling of her political adversaries. She's not done either, saying she plans to run for city council in 2010.

"I want to change the atmosphere of City Hall, that whole feeling that it's us against them," she says. "I want to say, 'Look, you talk about the city being diverse, then why don't we prove that? Let's bring in the first trans city councillor.'"

For Anderson, the mandate has always remained the same: To fight for a city and a world that welcomes all people, regardless of colour, creed or orientation. But based on her day-to-day experiences — encountering homophobia on the job being common, she notes — there's still a lot to do.

"Gays, lesbians, bisexuals and transpeople have contributed a lot to the world," she says. "It's sad to hear homophobic comments. Oddly enough, when I go out to do my columns, I sometimes get these hateful remarks. There's still a lot of work to do in the future, and people shouldn't let their guard down. We have to keep working until we never have to talk about this anymore."

back to its roots

Toronto kicks off one of its largest annual celebrations today with Pride Week. More than one million people are expected to attend this year.

But Erika Hennebury, associate producer for Buddies In Bad Times Theatre, reminds people to look back and remember the community's achievements: "It went from a political protest to a huge, city-wide celebration."

Toronto's Pride festivities were led by Pride Day's legal incorporation in 1981 and celebration in Grange Park.

In the years before, Toronto's gay and lesbian community struggled with the Ontario government to recognize Pride Day and allow for a street to be closed in its honour.

The community's efforts made history in 1984 when the government allowed Church Street to be closed for a Pride celebration.

The June festivities today have evolved to include lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender communities. There are celebratory events all over the city, concluding with the parade that navigates through the city's core.

"It's all about going out, celebrating and having fun," said Lenore MacAdam, co-chair of Pride Toronto.

First on the Pride Week party agenda is PRIDE WEEK'S OFFICIAL LAUNCH PARTY. "Unified" being this year's theme, Toronto's biggest festival of gaiety gets its boas slithering at Woody's in the heart of the gay village. Known for its signature Best Chest contest — and contests below the belt — this is the one place you'll want to be.

I'll be there in true glamourlicious style, but be prepared for the muscled-pumped Trojan boys to help you with some protection. Wink wink. It's not just the boys who will be having fun. The night also features performances by Toronto's most recognized burlesque babe, Coco La Crème; drag queen, Divinesque; electro pop boy band Chris Wind & Jack Wild of BoyTech, and pop punk band Fierce Helder. The Toronto News Girls boxing club will be adding some punch to the night's festivities.

"I'll be shaking my business doing fabulous burlesque and showing the Woody's crowd what a real best chest looks like," says burlesque babe Miss Coco La Crème. "It's great to see everyone come out and kick off Pride with some good drinks, good times, and great stripping."

COURTESY COCO LA CRÈME

Comedic diva Sharron Matthews and burlesque babe Coco La Crème, right, will be part of Pride Week festivities.

If theatre is what gets your Pride Week juices flowing, then Buddies In Bad Times Theatre is where you want to be. Its SEXY PRIDE weeklong-themed cabaret performances squeeze out two shows tonight.

In the Mainspace: MADONNA SAVED ME, curated by Shane MacKinnon. Inspired by dear Madge herself, the show pays tribute to queer icons that have saved the day.

At the other end: TALLULAH'S CABARET PRESENTS: THE B LIST with the "Beastie Boys of Drag," The B-Girlz. With big hair, colourful costumes, and recycled heels, the Girlz go west in search of lower gas prices in a medley of original tunes and dance. Remember: What happens at a B-Girlz show stays at a B-Girlz show.

Come Saturday, it's SHARRON'S BIG GAY PARTY hosted by actress and comedic diva Sharron Matthews. This variety-packed show brings the four corners of entertainment — drag, comedy, dance and music — into one room.

"Imagine a fabulous '80s basement party, crossed with a late night talk show, and add some singin', dancin' and pee-your-pantsin'," says Matthews. "It will be the perfect way to start getting your Pride on."

‘Super ministry’ for Smitherman

Minister thought to have eye on T.O. mayor’s job

George Smitherman’s Toronto mayoral ambitions jolted Premier Dalton McGuinty into custom-making a new energy and infrastructure “super ministry” for his biggest cabinet star.

Sources told the Torstar News Service that talk of the health minister’s possible bid against Mayor David Miller in 2010 played some role in today’s 10 a.m. mini-shuffle.

The premier’s belief in a nuclear future for Ontario and Energy Minister Gerry Phillips’ stated desire to slow down made the moves a no-brainer, insiders say.

To that end, Smitherman, 44, named to the ceremonial post of deputy premier last year after musing about a jump to federal politics, will this morning be sworn in at Queen’s Park as minister of energy and infrastructure.

huge projects

» Smitherman’s new powerhouse department will oversee huge projects totalling $60 billion in public works, including transit and roads, as well as $26.3 billion in nuclear energy.

His replacement at health is Infrastructure Renewal Minister David Caplan, 43, whose mother, Elinor Caplan, served in that same portfolio 20 years ago.

Phillips, 67, will remain in cabinet as minister without portfolio.

Keeping Smitherman happy contributed to the decision to create the new department, another insider said.

“Some people in the premier’s office are quite intimidated by George,” confided the high-ranking Liberal. “He can bully himself into anything he wants.” TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Hezbollah has cells in Canada: Report

A published report says intelligence agencies in the United States and Canada have warned there are signs that Hezbollah, backed by Iran, is poised to mount a terror attack against “Jewish targets” somewhere outside the Middle East.

» Officials say Hezbollah is seeking revenge for the February assassination of Hezbollah’s military commander, Imad Mugniyah, killed by a car bomb in Syria. The group’s leaders blamed Israel, but Israeli officials denied it.

ABC News says intelligence officials have told the network the group has activated suspected “sleeper cells” in Canada and operatives have been tracked moving outside the group’s Lebanon base to Canada, Europe and Africa.

Officials told ABC that suspected Hezbollah operatives have conducted recent surveillance on the Israeli embassy in Ottawa and on several synagogues in Toronto.

Bernie Farber, CEO of the Canadian Jewish Congress, told The Canadian Press that there has been “chatter out there” since the assassination of the Hezbollah leader, but authorities have said there is nothing to lead them to believe there is any veracity to it. THE CANADIAN PRESS

‘Green Shift’ unveiled by federal Liberals

Liberal Leader Stéphane Dion has launched the first round of the next election campaign with an ambitious strategy to fight global warming with hefty increases in energy costs coupled with Robin Hood-style tax rebates aimed at easing poverty.

annual cost

» Dion figures his plan would cost the average family $250 a year, a figure that seems low since the party also estimates that natural gas bills alone could rise by at least $228 a year.

Dion yesterday pledged that the $15.4 billion in new taxes on fossil fuel energy would be more than offset by tax cuts to individuals and corporations, including initiatives specifically aimed at helping lower-income households like a new $350 child tax credit.

The insults were soon flying between Dion and Prime Minister Stephen Harper, hinting at the high stakes for all political leaders who could be fighting an election on the issue as early as this fall.

“Mr. Dion’s policies are crazy. This is crazy economics, it’s crazy environmental policy. He doesn’t even have clear environmental targets in his plan,” Harper said. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Obama off public cash

Democrat senator to take only private donations

Democrat Barack Obama said yesterday he will not take public money for the presidential election, a politically risky move that would allow him to raise millions of dollars more than Republican rival John McCain, but also exposes him to charges of hypocrisy.

more funds

» Obama is expected to raise much more than the $84 million that would be available through public financing.

Obama had pledged early in his campaign to take public funds if McCain did as well. Candidates who accept public financing cannot raise money from donors for the general election campaign.

But since then, Obama's campaign has shown great prowess in raising small amounts of money over the Internet from large numbers of individual donors.

McCain, who has taken steps to accept public funds, criticized his rival for backtracking, reminding reporters that Obama "said he would stick to his word. He didn't."

"It's not an easy decision, and especially because I support a robust system of public financing of elections," Obama told supporters yesterday. "But the public financing of presidential elections as it exists today is broken, and we face opponents who've become masters at gaming this broken system."

Germany jails Iraqi refugee

A German court has ruled an Iraqi refugee must spend three years in prison for spreading messages by al Qaeda leaders on the Internet.

Ibrahim Raschid, 37, was sentenced yesterday on 22 counts of soliciting members or supporters for a terrorist organization.

The court found that in 2005 and 2006, he played or spread links to collections of audio and video messages by al Qaeda leader Osama bin Laden and slain "al Qaeda in Iraq" leader Abu Musab al-Zarqawi.

Presiding Judge Wolfgang Siolek said the Internet served al Qaeda as a "worldwide platform for creating a climate of fear" and was an "integral component of terrorist threats."

Siolek said Raschid had made himself into "a multiplier in the service of al Qaeda."

Raschid was arrested in 2006. Investigators gathered evidence through surveillance and a search of his apartment.

Anti-terror squad on Olympic patrol

China has mobilized a 100,000-strong anti-terrorism force to guard the Beijing Olympics.

The official Xinhua news agency says the force was activated earlier this month after completing a series of drills. It is comprised of police commandos, specialist units and regular army troops.

threat

» China has said terrorism is the biggest threat to the games and claimed to have already foiled multiple plots by domestic separatists to sabotage the event.

Xinhua says it also includes China's Snow Wolf Commando Unit, which is specifically tasked with handling terrorist alerts and public unrest during or around the Aug. 8-24 Games.

Liu Shaowu, security director for the Beijing organizing committee, says the force is being activated now because the "experience of past games shows that terrorist attacks may occur before the games."

Ex-Nortel execs had long ties with company

Douglas Beatty, who first joined Nortel in 1985, took over the position of chief financial officer in 2002.

According to a report, at the time of his appointment, Beatty didn't have a high profile in the investment community and was appointed to the position after a lengthy internal and external search.

odd match?

» Dunn's appointment as CEO, at first blush, was an odd match. Investors were expecting a high profile outsider with a strong business plan and new vision for the future.

He left Nortel in 1995 to join Sprint Canada Inc. as vice-president of finance, returning to Nortel as controller in 1999.

Frank Dunn, who joined Nortel in 1976, was appointed CEO in 2001. Until his dismissal in 2004, by all accounts Dunn, "a nice guy," was well liked and respected by the thousands of workers at Nortel, often spotted lining up in the cafeteria with the rest of the staff.

Michael Gollogly was appointed controller at Nortel in 2002. He is a chartered accountant who joined Northern Telecom in October 1996 as an assistant vice-president for corporate reporting.

Gasoline fuels inflation rate jump

Canada's inflation shot past the 2 per cent level for the first time in four months in May, as rising gasoline prices boosted the annual rate a half-point higher to 2.2 per cent.

Statistics Canada said the 0.5 per cent hike was the biggest since September, and the 1 per cent monthly jump from April to May was the most since January 1991.

Economists had been expecting inflation to accelerate but at a slower pace, forecasting the year-over-year increase at 1.9 per cent in May. Still, they are divided as to whether Canada now has an inflation problem, as the Bank of Canada suggested last week when it brought an abrupt end to interest rate cuts.

Germany romps into semis

Portugal has streak of final 4 dates snapped

GERMANY 3 PORTUGAL 2

Bastian Schweinsteiger scored one goal and set up two more yesterday to give Germany a 3-2 win over Portugal and a spot in the European Championship semifinals.

In the battle between Manchester United's Cristiano Ronaldo and Chelsea's Michael Ballack, the German came out on top. He delivered the deciding blow by scoring the third goal in the 61st minute, shoving away Paulo Ferreira and heading past an out-of-position Ricardo.

It was the first time Germany moved into the final four since it won in 1996, and it was also the first time Portugal failed to make the semifinals in the last three international tournaments.

Miroslav Klose also scored for Germany, while Nuno Gomes and Helder Postiga had goals for Portugal.

The Germans started the upset with a move in the best Portuguese tradition. Lukas Podolski set up a couple short passing combinations and sped off much like Ronaldo would do. In the centre, Schweinsteiger beat Ferreira for pace, and given the perfect low cross slotted it past Ricardo for the opener in the 22nd.

"Up to now, we lacked a bit of creativity. That is why we changed today and that was the key," Ballack said. "Now, you saw what this team has when it can play freely."

The Portuguese were surprised at such light-footed creativity from the Germans and before they knew it, they were down 2-0. Schweinsteiger swung in a free kick from near midfield, and Ronaldo remained flat-footed while Klose sped by him and powerfully knocked the ball past Ricardo.

"There is always something left. Everything is possible in football," Schweinsteiger said. "We can battle."

The sterling performance from Schweinsteiger was a perfect comeback for the peroxide-dyed midfielder after he had been sent off for a petulant shove on an opponent in Germany's 2-1 loss to Croatia.

"We cannot allow two goals from set pieces against a team like Germany. That made the difference," said Postiga, who had brought Portugal close with a header in the 87th minute.

Portugal coach Luiz Felipe Scolari criticized referee Peter Frojdfeldt for allowing Ballack's goal.

"We made some mistakes in the first two goals, but I can contest the third and television can show it clearly," he said, complaining about Ballack's muscular intervention.

Now, the Germans will play the winner of today's quarter-final match between Turkey and Croatia.

Germany prevailed even though coach Joachim Loew was banned from the game by UEFA after getting sent to the stands during the final group game, a 1-0 win over Austria. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ninth-inning surge can't help Blue Jays

Milwaukee holds on to eight-run lead to win

BREWERS 8 BLUE JAYS 7

The Blue Jays struck for six runs, including a grand slam, in the ninth inning yesterday to nearly rescue a game in which they were either asleep or indifferent for eight innings.

In the end, it was a great show — with Joe Inglett stroking the slam — but not enough to erase the sorry display that allowed Milwaukee to put up eight runs in the first five innings en route to an 8-7 win at Miller Park.

"We don't quit, we never do, but we don't win games ... we're not playing well enough to win," Jays manager John Gibbons said.

The late charge, in which Lyle Overbay cracked a two-run homer, merely disguised a horrible game — and three-game series — for the Jays.

"Somebody had to do it; the last thing you want is to get no-hit," Overbay said. "We were on him (Bush), but he was throwing cutters and fastballs. It seemed like he was making the right pitch at the right time, but it's like that is happening to us too many times."

The Jays should have been angry, motivated and prepared to end their losing streak, but instead they played their worst game of the series and looked indifferent about it for all but one inning.

They might take a swing at anyone suggesting they have "quit," but they have no defined approach at the plate and three of their best pitchers — Dustin McGowan, Shaun Marcum and A.J. Burnett — failed to deliver when the team most needed someone to stop the losing streak.

"Hopefully, this (six-run ninth inning) gets us jump-started. We need something," Overbay said. "It shows we can do it."

YORK REPORT
MARTY YORK
marty.york@metronews.ca

The Blue Jays will fire their general manager and/or manager within a week.

That was information forwarded to me yesterday by sources close to club owner Ted Rogers. They're fed up.

The Jays have lost five consecutive games and languish in the cellar of the AL East. Manager John Gibbons appears to have run out of answers and general manager J.P. Ricciardi appears to have run out of excuses.

Possible replacements for Gibbons: Jays third-base coach Brian Butterfield or ex-Oakland A's manager Ken Macha.

Possible replacement for Ricciardi: Former Jays president Paul Beeston, who's retired, lives in Toronto and never has been involved in on-field operations. But, hey, that won't necessarily make him any worse than Ricciardi.

» Ricciardi, incidentally, has foolishly initiated a bizarre war of words with, of all people, Cincinnati Reds outfielder Adam Dunn.

For details, read my latest MLB Report at www.metronews.ca.

» Canada's national cricket team is about to receive a major boost, courtesy of your tax dollars.

The Canadian government will announce funding at a news conference this morning and, sources tell me, the team will pick up a nice chunk of cash. Mind you, any amount would be nice after what the team has received from the government in past decades — nothing.

> « "If I'm an American, I can't own a radio station here." »
> Argonauts co-owner Howard Sokolowski

Word is Scotiabank also will supply the team with between $200,000 and $300,000 through a sponsorship arrangement, another first for Canadian cricket.

At cricket's World Cup in Barbados last year, Canada won only one game. With significant finances behind it now, though, anticipate considerably better results at the next World Cup in India in 2011.

» No NBA club is more active on the trade market, we're told, than the Raptors, who will try to make a big splash before next Thursday's draft. They're dangling several players, none more aggressively than T.J. Ford ... Ford isn't the only point guard available, though. Others available include the Portland Trailblazers' Jarrett Jack, the Milwaukee Bucks' Mo Williams and the Indiana Pacers' Jamaal Tinsley ... The Denver Nuggets intend to deal ex-Raptors centre Marcus Camby and the $22 million US he has left on his contract ... The brother of Los Angeles Lakers centre Pau Gasol will be a high choice in the draft. Marc Gasol also is a centre. He's a Spanish native but lives in Memphis and played high school basketball there after his brother joined the Grizzlies years ago.

» The CFL is now openly paranoid about an NFL invasion and is lobbying for government intervention.

"If I'm an American," Argonauts co-owner Howard Sokolowski said, "I can't own a radio station here."

Joseph ready for action

Newest Argonauts QB outplays Bishop in loss

TIGER-CATS 28 ARGONAUTS 21

Kerry Joseph made his case to be the Argonauts' starting quarterback with a solid but unspectacular performance during a 28-21 loss last night to the Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the final pre-season contest for both teams.

Joseph, the CFL's most outstanding player in 2007 acquired from Saskatchewan via an off-season trade, was 8 of 18 passing for 147 yards and ran for a touchdown in the opening two quarters before a crowd of 21,422.

He easily outplayed the other Argos candidate for the starter's job, incumbent Michael Bishop — whose first pass of the game was intercepted by Ticats linebacker Zeke Moreno and did little to impress in his two quarters — not to mention Hamilton's Casey Printers, the league's 2004 outstanding player.

Quinton Porter, the third Ticats QB of the night, provided the margin of victory with his nine-yard TD run with 1:07 remaining. Tre Smith's 73-yard punt return set things up.

Jesse Lumsden scored a touchdown on a nine-yard rush while Nick Setta kicked four field goals for the Tiger-Cats, who host Montreal in their season-opener next Thursday.

Dominique Dorsey added a rushing touchdown for the Argos, who open the regular season next Friday in Winnipeg.

NHL could boot Rangers' owners

Anti-trust battle getting uglier

The NHL is threatening to kick the owners of the New York Rangers out of the league or force them to sell the team as punishment for accusing league officials of violating anti-trust laws.

The NHL filed court papers Wednesday that included a draft letter from commissioner Gary Bettman proposing discipline against Madison Square Garden, L.P, that could lead to suspension or termination of its ownership of the Rangers. The Garden responded by accusing the NHL of using "bullying tactics."

In its court filing, the NHL asked a judge to agree Madison Square Garden breached its contract by challenging league rules.

Madison Square Garden sued the NHL in September, saying it violated antitrust laws by monopolizing control of team promotions. A judge ruled in November that the league seemed within its rights to take control of the team's website.

MSG spokesman Barry Watkins said yesterday that the league was consistent but wrong in its handling of the dispute.

"Not surprisingly, the NHL is once again proving why an independent judge must address our claims. Despite trying to resolve our differences privately, the league has responded with excessive fines and now threats that have nothing to do with the merits of our position," he said.

Blue-line prospects looking for respect

Stars other than Stamkos garner attention at draft

SEAN KILPATRICK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

It might surprise some hockey fans that Steven Stamkos is not the prospect the NHL's Central Scouting Bureau believes is most ready to step into the league.

He's been receiving all the attention heading into the NHL draft and for good reason — the Tampa Bay Lightning have all — but said they'll select Stamkos first overall and many believe he's destined to become a star.

However, there are also some good players behind him who might also be ready to help an NHL team as soon as next season. Defencemen Zach Bogosian and Drew Doughty each think they'll be ready to take that step with the team that calls their name tonight.

"I really hope I can play in the NHL next year," Doughty said yesterday. "I'm going to do everything I can to make that happen."

Neither Bogosian nor Doughty are likely to end up in Canada. The Maple Leafs have the highest pick among the six Canadian teams at No. 7 overall, followed by Vancouver at No. 10, Calgary at No. 17, Ottawa at No. 18, Edmonton at No. 22 and Montreal at No. 25.

Bogosian grew up in Massena, N.Y., and has already spent plenty of time with Hall of Fame blue-liners.

After leaving home at age 14, Bogosian attended Cushing Academy and had Ray Bourque as an assistant coach. In 2000, he found himself at Scott Stevens' cottage hanging with the Cup champions. Bogosian wore No. 4 with the Petes in honour of Bobby Orr, who just happens to be his agent.

Canada fielding best soccer team ever?

National squad looks to qualify for 2010 World Cup

Midfielder Julian de Guzman believes that the current edition of the Canadian national soccer team may be the best ever, but only qualifying for the 2010 World Cup could validate that claim.

"Right now, the quality is totally different from what Canada's used to," de Guzman said yesterday. "We're more attacking, more confident on the ball and those are the qualities you need to qualify for a World Cup."

Canada's one and only trip to the World Cup was in 1986 in Mexico, where it made some British bookmakers money by failing to score a goal in three first-round games, although it did well to hold mighty France to 1-0 in its opening match.

de Guzman

The long march toward earning a spot in the 2010 tournament in South Africa continues on Friday night when Canada faces tiny St. Vincent and the Grenadines in the second leg of a two-game, total-goals series at Saputo Stadium.

Canada has a commanding lead after beating the Caribbean islanders 3-0 in St. Vincent on Sunday.

It should be an easy night, but coach Dale Mitchell was taking no chances. He closed his practice to the media after the first 15 minutes yesterday and declined to speak to reporters afterward.

A win over St. Vincent would put Canada into the round robin phase of qualifying in the CONCACAF zone that begins in August, in a tough group with Mexico, Honduras and Jamaica.

The top two from that group make the final six-team round robin to be played in 2009, from which three and perhaps four teams will advance to the World Cup.

The current team has more speed and skill than the team in 1986, with a lot more players coming from high or at least mid-level European clubs.

Still, Canada is ranked a meagre 60th in the world by FIFA, soccer's world governing body, and lags far behind the world powers like Germany, Spain and Italy.

The actual course didn't give Wagner much more of a challenge yesterday in the Travelers Championship when he shot a 6-under 64 to match Steve Lowery, Brad Adamonis and Englishman Brian Davis for the first-round lead.

» GOLF Japan's Ai Miyazato, celebrating her 23rd birthday, shot a 4-under 68 yesterday to join Cristie Kerr and five South Korean players atop the crowded leaderboard at the Wegmans LPGA. Jeong Jang, Inbee Park, Song-Hee Kim, Jimin Jeong and Soo-Yun Kang, who holed a nine-wood shot for an ace on the 165-yard seventh hole, also shot 68s.

Mike Myers, left, stars as Pitka in The Love Guru.

REVIEW HAND IT to Mike Myers. At least the guy can create an interesting character. In The Love Guru, Myers stars as Pitka, a self-help swami who hopes a high-profile case will land him a coveted spot on Oprah so he can overtake his life-long competitor Deepak Chopra as the No. 1 guru in the world. That opportunity comes when he's enlisted by the Toronto Maple Leafs to help reconcile their star player with his ex-lover in order to end a goal-slump curse on the way to winning the Stanley Cup (and that is actually NOT intended as one of the jokes).

OK, nobody said Myers' movies were grounded in reality.

Austin Powers certainly only had a modicum of believability, and like Powers, at least The Love Guru showcases Myers' ability to charm us with his quirky characters, even if they are all beginning to seem slightly too familiar.

Mind you, there are some funny moments in The Love Guru. However, the most notable ones come courtesy of Stephen Colbert, who makes a surprising appearance as a drugged-out sports commentator.

As for Myers, he shines more when he's performing a sitar version of Extreme's 1990 ballad More Than Words than he ever does ceaselessly dropping bad penis puns or making cracks about soiling himself.

See, the genius of the Austin Powers movies was their clever ability to recycle gags; they worked because they were still within the context of Austin Powers.

Transporting a lot of familiar jokes over to Guru just seems ... well, lazy.

Toss in the fact that Myers even cast his diminutive Austin Powers co-star Vern Troyer so he could exploit a handful of midget jokes and it gets a bit much. On the other hand, I suppose it's nice to see Myers keeping Mini-Me employed.

Supporting cast helps Carell shine in Get Smart

Steve Carell and Anne Hathaway star in Get Smart, opening this weekend.

REVIEW TO IMAGINE how badly the movie version of Get Smart might have turned out, one need only reflect with a wince on some recent spy movie parodies (Johnny English) or the lower points of Steve Carell's career (Evan Almighty). Peter Segal's film manages to avoid either film's dismally unfunny effect, mostly by hewing closely to the spirit of the original TV series starring Don Adams, and by a happy accident of casting.

Carell takes over the role made famous by Adams — Maxwell Smart, the bumbling but cocksure secret agent who succeeds in spite of his best efforts. Anne Hathaway does a fine job with Agent 99, played by Barbara Feldon in the TV series, ably matching Feldon's innate sexiness; the only real flaw in Hathaway's portrayal is her inability to evoke the fetchingly neurotic quality Feldon brought to the role.

It's in the supporting cast, however, that the film creates a sympathetic setting for Carell to make Smart his own creature and not either a mimicry or a parody of Adams.

The movie teases out all the well-loved props and devices of the show with a coyness that's only occasionally maddening, while Carell noticeably undersells Adams' trademark lines such as "Missed it by that much."

A sequel — broadly hinted at by Patrick Warburton's cameo near the end as Hymie the robot agent — will have to discover its own comic momentum if it wants to avoid turning a promising start into a pale tribute.

My Winnipeg

By ADAM NAYMAN

REVIEW SUGGESTING NOTHING so much as a Canadian Heritage Minute distended to feature length and spiced with peyote, Guy Maddin's poetic documentary My Winnipeg is easily the most ambitious film ever made about the capital of Manitoba. Granted, it's a pretty short list. But I'd go even further and say My Winnipeg is the greatest statement of civic pride in recent Canadian cinema: An appropriate alternate title could have been This Beautiful City (and an appropriate alternate title for This Beautiful City could have been Let's All Hate Toronto). Not that Maddin's feelings about his birthplace are uncomplicated. Like Cowards Bend The Knee, My Winnipeg finds the filmmaker in autobiographical-confessional mode, weaving together personal and municipal legends so that the two seem inextricable.

The film begins with Madding insisting, via voiceover, that he must literally and figuratively leave the city ASAP, lest he succumb to its hypnotic undertow. But that's exactly what happens — instead of getting out, he and his on-screen surrogate, played in a state of perpetual slumpage by Darcy Fehr, are pulled back in. Symbolically charged vignettes unfold in between believe-it-or-not stories about Winnipeg's past, from hockey heroes to (frozen) horse heads. While some viewers will undoubtedly rush to their encyclopedias to vet the authenticity of these anecdotes — i.e., did the city fathers really stage a mock Nazi invasion to goose war bond sales? — the fact of their factualness is irrelevant. Maddin is trying to communicate the outsized, lingering effect that our surroundings have on our psyches.

His groggily fantastic Winnipeg could be your Montreal, or somebody else's Moncton. We're all products of our environment, and My Winnipeg is the work of somebody who coped with his hometown's sleepiness by becoming a brilliant dreamer.

The clash of class and culture

Before The Rains

Stars Linus Roache, Nandita Das
Director Santosh Sivan

PG

By BRIAN COULTON
for Metro Toronto

REVIEW A CULTURALLY forbidden romance in 1930s southern India between an English spice tycoon and Indian housekeeper provokes tragedy, life-changing decisions and questions of class constructs in Before The Rains.

English businessman Henry Moores (Linus Roache) engages in an affair with married local, Sajani (Nandita Das) while working in India. Their jaunt is quickly punctured, however, when Moores' wife, Laura (Jennifer Ehle) returns from Britain to join him. After Sajani's husband discovers she's been unfaithful, she is faced with the choice between communal disgrace for her actions and loneliness from her inability to remain with Moores.

With Sajani's personal exile seemingly unavoidable, Moores entrusts his Indian business partner T.K. (Rahul Bose) to conceal their affair by sending her away. The task is just one bump in the road of T.K.'s struggle between his Indian cultural roots and the opportunity for modernization presented by Moores.

The first English language feature by Santosh Sivan is based on the short film Red Roofs, part of Israeli director Dany Verete's The Desert Trilogy: Yellow Asphalt. Before The Rains effectively isolates cultural clashes through the decisions faced by a number of the film's characters.

Most prominently and convincingly, T.K.'s internal conflicts portray tension between his Eastern heritage and Western prospects.

Unanticipated turns in the plot present challenges not just to T.K.'s domestic lifestyle and loyalty but also to his personal ethical code.

While the film interestingly examines such points of friction, fruition is barely attained by the story's end.

Microcosms of moral quandaries offer fodder for consideration, but cohesion is lost to closing dramatics.

A metallic globe

Global Metal

Directors Sam Dunn, Scott McFadyen

By RICK McGINNIS
Metro Toronto

REVIEW AFTER GIVING us a potted history of metal in Metal: A Headbanger's Journey, Sam Dunn and Scot McFadyen decided to respond to the fan mail they received from all over the world to explore how heavy metal has penetrated the vast world outside of the suburbs and apartment blocks of America and Europe. The trip takes them from Brazil to Asia and the Middle East, while whole parts of the world — Africa and Russia in particular — go unexplored, in anticipation of perhaps another film essay by the pair.

With Dunn as on-camera host and McFadyen his silent partner, they discover how metal's themes of violent alienation and controlled rage resonate a bit more profoundly in countries where poverty and oppression are everyday realities, or where escape into a fervent — and inevitably masculine — fantasy world are welcome respites from societies organized around duty and conformity.

Metal feels a lot less like a faintly adolescent hobby in places like Brazil and Indonesia, and in places like Iran, where metalheads are seen as cultural fifth columnists by the mullahs that rule the country.

In Israel, metal bands have an arty sophistication rare anywhere else, while in Japan there's a whole scene meant strictly for domestic consumption that happily mixes bruising, anthemic headbanging with prissy ballads. In every place, metal seems to have adapted to the local terrain, with occasionally disturbing results — in Indonesia, Dunn interviews the lead singer for the country's most popular band, who proudly sports an anti-Nazi armband while telling him that Zionists, a depressingly common euphemism for Jews, should be dealt with murderously.

It's the only place where Dunn finds himself unable to melt happily into a community defined by its love of jackhammer rhythms and crushing guitars, and a reminder that, where circumstances are sufficiently poisonous, politics can curdle the inclusive, escapist prerogatives of culture.

Family Motel

Stars Nargis Jibril, Asha Gibril
Director Helene Klodawsky

STC

By BRIAN TOWIE
Metro Toronto

REVIEW AYAN IS a refugee working two cleaning jobs to support both her two daughters and her family back in conflict-torn Somalia. Of course, with all her commitments, the bills get the better of her. The family gets evicted, and relocated to a motel on the wrong side of town.

Helene Klodawsky has helmed a poignant eye-opener about how tough life can be for new Canadians: The film's acts of kindness are few and far-between Nargis Jibril and her two real-life daughters – all first-time actors – demonstrate the troubles new Canadians often find in Family Motel.

(and often come from their fellow Somalis), and the bureaucracy they turn to for help fails them miserably.

The real-life mother-daughter bond also adds a natural kind of chemistry between the trio of cast members; it's a warmth that makes you forget that the Jibrils are first-timers to acting. The film's heavy-handed style can often compromise its power to compel, however. The motel is crawling with degenerates, the older child gets involved with a violent teen, both kids turn on their mother, who begins to unravel under the pressure of constant work and worry — there's no bottom in the ghetto. Get it yet?

You almost expect a scene where a daughter says, "How could it get any worse?" as she becomes enveloped in the shadow of the anvil dropping from the sky.

That said, the movie rediscovers this nation from an immigrant's perspective well: They trade in a set of old-world problems for new Canadian ones, and that while it still might be a step up from a war-ravaged country, Canada isn't necessarily their end of the rainbow.

DON'T MESS WITH THE ZOHAN

★★★1/2 (out of 5)

Adam Sandler plays the title role in the film, a sort of Israeli James Bond with a secret dream of styling hair in New York City, who fakes his death and goes off to live his blow-dried, '80s-inspired dream. Sandler plays Zohan with an Israeli accent so painstakingly bad that it becomes its own joke, as does the film's barrage of Hebrew and Arab slang, most of it invented.

THE HAPPENING

The very great problem with M. Night Shyamalan's films is that once he departs from the nameless dread so painstakingly created in their setup, they've lost most of their reason to exist. The film is a bit of a departure for the director, since he reveals the big premise early on, and not near the end, sparing the audience the eye-rolling revelations that made Signs and The Village so retroactively disappointing. Unfortunately, that means you can start rolling your eyes and giggling earlier, with the first film that makes itself the punch line to global warming's joke.

KUNG FU PANDA

Kung Fu Panda introduces us to Po (Jack Black), a lazy panda who dreams of one day becoming a martial arts master. Kids will love watching a dumb panda fumbling around as he tries to save his village from destruction of a sinister snow leopard.

Wall-E a five year labour of love

By RICK McGINNIS
Metro Toronto

FEATURE IT'S BEEN five years since Andrew Stanton's Finding Nemo, his last movie, hit the theatres. In the same amount of time a director working in live action could have made five more films, but Stanton, one of Pixar's stable of name directors, has spent almost the whole time working on Wall-E, the studio's latest picture, a wildly labour-intensive period typical of how animated features are made, whether back in the golden age of Disney with cel animation, or today, with Pixar's state-of-the-art digital technology.

"I often say that directing animation is just like directing live action but in slow motion," Stanton tells Metro, looking back on the last five years. "You're dealing with human beings that are good at their craft; they all have the same jobs as on a live-action set, they just use a different tool to use that job, whether it's costumes, lighting effect, camerawork. And you don't have the luxury of getting together all at the same moment, saying 'action' and seeing it all come together."

"When you do live action, you do just as much planning, as much talk, just as many people, but then that moment happens on the same day — you shoot it, you're done. Spontaneity is king, and you go with it whether it's sunny or it's raining or whether you planned on clouds, and there's something very invigorating about spontaneity. There is not an ounce of spontaneity in making an animated picture, because it just takes so long. So the winning side of animation is that you have a godlike control of everything. You can basically tweak till the last second. You can go back to things you did two years ago and change it again, or tweak it a little more. You can be quite the perfectionist, and it would be great if you could do both."

RICK McGINNIS/METRO TORONTO

Andrew Stanton, director Wall-E, says he looked at all kinds of robots, including a bomb-sniffing one, as research.

Pixar is famous for its research trips, where the heads of each department go out and collect the textures and movements and feel of the world where the film is set. For Cars, they went out and toured old Route 66; for Ratatouille, it was a trip to Paris to sample the city's best restaurants. Wall-E is set on a future Earth covered with garbage, and in space, and neither place suggested any glamorous research trip, so Stanton admits he delayed his research in favour of spending a few months — his vacation time after Nemo — storyboarding the film at Pixar. Only after he'd gotten the green light did he go out and explore the look of the film.

"We went to dumps, we went to recycling centres," Stanton recalls.

"We looked at any kind of robot we could look at, even if it was the bomb-sniffing robot from the nearby police department. We did go to (NASA's) Jet Propulsion Laboratories and look at some of their rover designs. And we went on the Disney cruise line to see how the ships are run. It was a lot of hodge-podge stuff — there wasn't anything really that sexy about it. Cause so much of it was fantasy — you just have to make stuff up."

» Wall-E is in theatres next Friday.

Carell gets smart

By GLEN MILLER
Metro Toronto

GETTY IMAGES

Steve Carell says in preparing for the iconic role of Maxwell Smart, he purposely avoided watching episodes of the TV series.

FEATURE SO HOW DO you go about making a movie derived from an iconic Emmy Award-winning series and not fall flat on your face like a Maxwell Smart tumble on the floor?

For the generation that grew up on the 1965-70 comedy series Get Smart, it's hallowed ground, but co-screenwriter Tom Astle and company felt totally comfortable indulging in an opportunity to score some points with the old generation of Get Smart fans — and make a film that stands on its own merit as a comedic action film that has romance, too.

"I think the reason the movie works in this time period is that the original series was done at a time during the Cold War, so there was paranoia in the air. I don't know if anybody has noticed, but there is a little paranoia in society in general now," Astle, who considers himself a disciple of the series, told Metro. "I think that's what makes it an appropriate time to do this movie now."

While the movie's brain trust knew it was obliged to pay homage to the original series, there was a conscious decision not to simply produce a direct steal from the series.

Steve Carell (The Office) had no intention of trying to emulate the legendary Don Adams, who starred as Maxwell Smart, Agent 86. So, to prepare, there was no revisiting the old shows.

"I steered away from it because I didn't want to do an impression of Don Adams," Carell said at a press conference in L.A. "I figured there was no way to improve upon what he had done. And I thought the more I watched him, the more I would be inclined to do an impersonation because he was so good and so definitive in the role."

Get Smart, which opens in theatres today, has an abundance of stars to make it sellable: Carell, Anne Hathaway (Agent 99), Alan Arkin (the Chief), Terence Stamp (Siegfried), Dwayne Johnson (Agent 23), not to mention some other famous face cameos. In the film, Agent 86 and 99 must somehow thwart the plans of world domination by KAOS.

One major difference between the series and movie is that it is Agent 86 who must prove himself to 99, the senior agent, who isn't thrilled at first to be partnering with the newbie Smart, who serendipitously achieves his career goal to be an agent. And — loving it.

ON THE FLY

» Diehard Get Smart fans will have to have a sharp eye to catch some of the subtle nods to the TV series — one being the flash on the screen showing the name of the airplane Agents 86 and 99 take to fly to Russia. The name of the jet? Yarmy Airlines. Yarmy was Don Adams' real surname.

Real tears for real hardships

By BRIAN COULTON
for Metro Toronto

FEATURE WHEN THE Jibril sisters were kids, their mother Nargis always fell for 15-year-old Sagal's tears. "We used to call her waterworks," quips sister Asha, 17. So when Sagal was directed to cry on queue during production of the new film Family Motel, her family wasn't surprised at her brisk ability to turn on the emotion. Nargis remembers, "Asha said, 'Mom, all those years I told you she was just lying every time she cried for you. See, this is what I meant!'"

The ladies Jibril are the first-time actors and real-life family who star in Family Motel, directed by Helene Klodawsky. The film follows Somali immigrant Ayan (Nargis Jibril) and her two daughters Nasrah (Asha Jibril) and Leila (Sagal Jibril) who are trying to survive in their new life in Canada. Exhausted by her cleaning job, sending money to her husband and sons in Somalia and raising adolescent daughters, Ayan struggles to financially support her family. Faced with eviction, the three are placed in a motel when Ottawa shelters are full, and Ayan tries to piece together her crumbling life.

Augmenting the challenge of being new actors, the Jibrils improvised most of the film based on given scenarios from Klodawsky. "I had no clue what they were doing. I thought they were bonkers!" laughs Nargis. But she admits eventually understanding how the technique produced more raw emotions. Adds Asha, "If I had a script I probably would have practised so much and made it so fake, thinking this is how Hollywood actresses do it."

Despite the emotional intensity of their performances, Nargis didn't believe the issues Family Motel dealt with — immigration, homelessness and racism, to name a few — were portrayed in a harsh enough light.

"(The movie) doesn't really expose the hard-core version of those issues," says Nargis.

The only thing Mike Myers wants more than to make people laugh is for the Leafs to win the Cup.

Guru of Scarborough

By BRIAN TOWIE
Metro Toronto

FEATURE MIKE MYERS has the secret to the lethally addictive power of Johnny's Hamburgers fries-and-gravy combination, and there's not a Scarberian worth their salt who wouldn't want to know it.

"They parboil them, fry them once, put them in a cardboard box, shake it, then they fry them again," says the actor of the east-end burger landmark.

So it's true what they say: You can take the boy out of Scarborough, but you can't take Scarborough out of the boy — as evidenced by Myers' latest comedy, The Love Guru. The Saturday Night Live alumnus has always inserted shout-outs to Toronto in previous work such as Wayne's World or his Austin Powers series, but this time his hometown was part of the story.

Filmed in part at the Air Canada Centre and Casa Loma, The Love Guru centres around Guru Pitka (Myers). A new-age self-help expert, he has to rejuvenate the confidence of a Toronto Maple Leafs sniper (Romany Malco from The 40-Year-Old Virgin) who is in the midst of a bid for the Stanley Cup and whose wife leaves him for his rival, well-endowed goaltender Jacques "Le Coq" Grande (Justin Timberlake). It's a work steeped in Canadian culture, but Myers isn't worried that international audiences won't be in on the joke.

"Thinking about what people get or don't get, no. It's about what you think is funny. That's really what I do," says Myers, 45. "A movie is supposed to take you somewhere you've never been before."

Directed by Marco Schnabel, the movie is vintage Myers with its carefully crafted pelvic humour, grandiose dance numbers and merciless teasing of Verne Troyer (who stars as the Leafs' irascible coach), set against a Bollywood backdrop. But he fashioned the story around one of his greatest fantasies: A Stanley Cup victory for the Leafs and an end to the 41-years-and-counting Cup drought. "I, like the rest of Toronto, have been waiting patiently," says Myers, who was only four years old when the Leafs last hoisted the trophy in 1967. "I figured, 'If you write it, they will come.' I wasn't going to wait for it to happen, I was going to use this wonderful blessing that I have of being able to make stuff up. For those who stay the course and believe, it will be a wonderful day."

Metalheads revisited

By RICK McGINNIS
Metro Toronto

FEATURE THERE'S A VERY TENSE moment in Sam Dunn and Scot McFadyen's Global Metal, their travelogue through heavy metal subculture around the world, where the lead singer of Tengkorak, Indonesia's biggest metal band, insists it's the mission of all Muslims — indeed of right-thinking people everywhere — to kill "Zionists," a sentiment he voices while wearing a prominent anti-Nazi armband.

Suddenly, the confused, inchoate world of early century politics has entered Dunn and McFadyen's world with a vengeance.

"It's kind of an unfortunate product of 9/11," Dunn reflects, "with the hardening of views, and some young people feel they have to take a very strong stance based on who they are in some countries. I think Tengkorak's politics are an example of that — being defensive, feeling attacked as a Muslim and having to direct your anger at something else."

Global Metal is a sequel of sorts to the pair's earlier film, Metal: A Headbanger's Journey, which followed Dunn, a trained anthropologist and lifelong metalhead, around the world as he explored the roots of his favourite music.

Global Metal is a response to all the letters he and McFadyen received in the aftermath of the first film's release. Politics didn't play much of a role in the first film, but it certainly does in the new one, with its stops in Brazil, China, Indonesia, Israel and United Arab Emirates.

"It's pre-political is the only way I can describe it, after the first film," says McFadyen. "It's political, but it doesn't give you an answer — it's a feeling. It's emotionally political, not intellectually political."

This Jewel Perfectly Clear

Singer-songwriter returns to roots on latest album

By BRIAN TOWIE
for Metro Toronto

Profile JEWEL HAS GONE country — but then she says she always was.

The Grammy Award winner and judge on NBC reality singing contest Nashville Star argues her newest album, Perfectly Clear, isn't so much about a reinvention of her sound as it is a return to her roots.

Released earlier this month, the album is full of Loretta Lynn-influenced narratives, swaying acoustic melodies and piano accents — a touch of city slicker sophistication to her largely self-produced down-home sound.

Jewel Kilcher penned much of the record growing up in rural Alaska, playing honky-tonk roadhouses with her dad and living on a ranch with no running water, a coal stove for heat and an outhouse for a toilet.

"I grew up writing this," says Jewel. "This is my life and my history. I didn't wake up and become someone else or get a new sound. I've never felt like I've had to pick a team or something. I've liked what I've always liked, which is storytelling."

The album belies Jewel's past incarnations, and maybe for good reason. Her 2003 album 0304, commercially successful though considered a misstep by critics and purist fans, fused big band with urban dance beats. It was certainly a far cry from 1995's Pieces Of You — one of the most successful debuts of all time. Jewel says the album was branded as alt-pop by a music industry riding the crest of the grunge rock tsunami caused by the success of bands such as Nirvana and Soundgarden, and should have been considered a country work if anything.

Now, at 34, Jewel has mixed memories of her time at the top. As a 19-year-old living in a car in San Diego, she wasn't ready for the ruthless realities of life at the top of the charts. She recalls frequently fighting uphill battles for creative freedom (which might explain away 0304.).

"I'm not trying to be a martyr or anything, but it is something to go from being homeless to being rich overnight. I was just not prepared for that at all. I don't think anyone would be. I certainly had rock 'n' roll clichés happen," she says. "The good news is that the more you're in control of everything, the safer you are."

Lesson learned — after more than a decade as a major label artist, Jewel says educating herself on the business has led her to a position where she can do what she wants, when she wants, and she warns up-and-comers to do the same.

"It's a complicated business, and it's not set up to help the artist win. It's set up for everyone else to make money off of you," she says. "The industry runs artists into the ground. You see these talented kids and they're broke. It's heartbreaking, and it happens over and over."

Perfectly Clear, the latest album from singer-songwriter Jewel, above, is now available in stores.

Music lingo's uncharted terrain

With around 750,000 words, the English language is an amazing thing.

But we haven't got around to finding names for everything just yet. For example, what do you call those chunks of snow gunk that build up in your car's wheel wells in winter? Or that part of your golf swing where you realize that you're going to shank it a millisecond before the club strikes the ball?

About a year ago, I was working on a radio show that studied how various bands had come up with their names. However, this particular area of academia didn't have a name. While the study of words is called etymology and the investigation of name origins is known as onomatology, there was nothing that described the study of how, say, a group of Irish high school kids eventually became known as U2.

Looking to secure immortality by placing a word in the Oxford English Dictionary, I consulted Dr. Sheila Embleton, a professor of linguistics at York University in Toronto and a member of The American Name Society. Then I talked to Marc Hershon, who operates Simmer Branding in Sausalito, Calif., the guy who helped come up with the name "Swiffer" for Proctor & Gamble. With their help, we came up with a name that satisfied our needs.

SOUND CHECK
alan@ongoinghistory.com

Hereafter, the study of the origins of the names of musical groups shall be known was bandomynology.

Since then, I've run across certain other music-related things which need names:

» The impatience that comes with the obligatory screaming and clapping between a performer's main set and the encore. Why do they make fans do that?

Alan wonders whether we need a name for the feeling you get when you discover a CD or piece of vinyl that you've spent years searching for.

» The annoyance you feel when a band that's been your special secret suddenly becomes popular.

» The kind of person that still frequents record stores and actually buys CDs.

» Speaking of which, we need a name for the feeling you get when you discover a CD or piece of vinyl that you've spent years searching for. Hardcore music collectors know exactly what I mean.

» People who insist on wearing gigantic studio-sized headphones while listening to their MP3 players in public. (If you're reading this on public transit, look around. You'll see at least one.)

» The sudden realization that you've just irretrievably lost all your music through a hard drive crash.

» Any thoughts? E-mail me so we can enrich the English language with our, er, onomastic wisdom.

» MUSIC The former Tennessee home of Johnny Cash's parents is on sale for $1.4 million US — and that includes a gold record from The Man in Black. Johnny Cash's brother Tommy says Ray and Carrie Cash relocated there from California in 1969 and lived in the home until they died. Johnny and June Carter Cash lived there briefly while an elevator was installed at their nearby home in Hendersonville, about 24 kilometres northeast of Nashville.

Wolf Parade

Album: At Mount Zoomer
Label: Sub Pop/Outside
Release Date: June 17

THREE YEARS AGO it was impossible to have a conversation about Canada's music scene without mentioning Wolf Parade. Expect the same for 2008. Wolf Parade's sophomore effort is a brilliant collection of catchy indie pop, complete with buzzing synths, bright guitars and complex arrangements. Thankfully, it's more measured than the band's first release — the vocals are more in control, the keys are less frantic, it's not as Modest Mouse-like — making this the best record of year so far. Coldplay

Album: Viva La Vida or Death And All His Friends
Label: Parlophone/EMI
Release Date: June 17

ACCORDING TO THE hype, the very life of the EMI Music empire rests on the success or failure of this album. Never fear. Despite the best efforts of producers Brian Eno (U2, Peter Gabriel) and Markus Dravs (Arcade Fire), this is still very much a Coldplay album. Better than X&Y, but not quite up to A Rush Of Blood To The Head. Another 10 million records will be sold, EMI will survive and Chris Martin will continue to be able to support children with funny names. GRAHAM ROCKINGHAM

Emmylou Harris

Album: All I Intended To Be
Label: Nonesuch/Warner
Release Date: June 10

THIS IS AN ALBUM that doesn't grip until the third track, Emmylou's self-penned traditional country croak, Broken Man's Lament. Then it all makes sense. Only Emmylou could turn diesel engines and crescent engines into things of beauty. Standouts include her take on Merle Haggard's Kern River and her collaboration with the McGarrigle sisters on Sailing Round The Room. GRAHAM ROCKINGHAM

Lil Wayne

Album: Tha Carter III
Label: Cash Money/ Universal Motown
Release Date: June 10

THE "BEST RAPPER alive" proclamation on Let The Beat Build might be pushing it. "Most eccentric rapper alive" sounds more appropriate, given that the third chapter in Wayne's Tha Carter trilogy is all over the map. Phone Home's alien persona and his wild physician m.o. on Dr. Carter stoop to cartoonish levels. His post-Hurricane Katrina ode Tie My Hands (featuring Robin Thicke) and, littered with Nina Simone-sampled bits of Don't Let Me Be Misunderstood, the oft-outspoken diatribe Don't Get It show off a powerful contemplative side. In between is an intricate puzzle that initially may infuriate but ultimately leaves little doubt His Weezy-ness got his own distinctive way of rhyming. IAN NATHANSON

My Brightest Diamond

Album: A Thousand Shark's Teeth Label: Asthmatic Kitty
Release Date: June 17

MY BRIGHTEST DIAMOND, A Thousand Shark's Teeth (Asthmatic Kitty) When you've got strange hair and hype sheets hailing you as a New York City "chanteuse," you're treading a dangerously fine line between the sublime and the loopy. For the most part, Shara Worden (a.k.a. My Brightest Diamond) manages to stay on the sublime side of the track, especially on the two opening tracks Inside A Boy and The Ice & The Storm. After that, however, every second step seems to cross into the loopy zone. GRAHAM ROCKINGHAM

The Offspring

Album: Rise and Fall, Rage and Grace
Label: Columbia/Sony BMG
Release Date: June 17

LET'S FACE IT, The Offspring will never release another Smash, but it's safe to say their Pretty Fly (For A White Guy) days are over too.

What we get now is a band that can't figure out where they fit into today's music scene.

Their eighth album is mix of gritty, infectious punk numbers and brutal Simple Plan-like pop.

It's best to download parts of this disc — get Trust In You, and Hammerhead, but stay far away from Fix You and Kristy, Are You Doing OK? BRYAN BORZYKOWSKI

Mars remake a depressing bore?

MARS ATTACKS: Bashing ABC's version of Life On Mars, the hit BBC time-travel police drama, is getting to be like self-abuse for me — I know it's probably wrong, and definitely far from productive, but it's a nice stress release, and I probably can't stop myself now, can I?

And right on cue comes a story on the U.K. Guardian's film and TV blog judging the show by its apparently-scrapped pilot — the one they made before original producer and showrunner David E. Kelley dropped out and the setting was changed from Los Angeles to New York in the '70s. James Donaghy, the paper's TV writer, calls it "pretty damn bad," with particular disapproval reserved for Jason O'Mara, the Irish actor who took the role of Sam Tyler, played by John Simm in the BBC original.

Donaghy calls O'Mara "an identikit beefcake of no notable ability," whose initial response to discovering that a car accident has rewound him back to 1972 is "as cliched as his blandly rugged mug. He shouts, he barges, his eyes pop. It's all quite tiresome."

He doesn't have much in the way of praise for Rachel Lefevre, who plays the love interest role of Annie Cartwright — a fellow police detective in the U.S. reworking, a lowly Women's Police Constable played memorably by Liz White in the original. She's a "swimwear model with a police badge who appears to have wandered into the building by mistake," and she and O'Mara share a "flatlining sexual chemistry." So far, so not good.

The only apparently good choice made by the show's original producers was casting Colm Meaney as Gene Hunt, a role made memorable — frankly, it was the best thing about the show — by Philip Glenister in the BBC original. Any actor would relish the bombastic leeway Glenister carved out for Gene Hunt, and Meaney is certainly up for the challenge, but according to Donaghy the Hunt role in the ABC version is "criminally underwritten ... He feels like an afterthought. He needs to be rewritten with the understanding that he, not Sam, is the most important character in the show and that it lives or dies on his success. It is remarkable that the producers don't seem to have grasped this."

Baby girl for Jamie Lynn

JAMIE LYNN Spears gave birth to a baby girl yesterday morning at a south Mississippi hospital, according to a person close to the Spears family.

The person confirmed the baby's birth to The Associated Press. The person asked not to be identified because the family had not yet announced the baby's birth.

Jamie Lynn

The baby girl has been named Maddie Briann, according to a People.com report.

The 17-year-old was the star of Nickelodeon's Zoey 101, a sitcom about prep school friends, and is the younger sister of pop star Britney Spears. The Spears family announced in December that Jamie Lynn was pregnant. The father is Casey Aldridge, a pipe-layer from Liberty, Miss. The couple announced an engagement several months ago.

Spears announced her pregnancy through an article in OK Magazine and was expected to receive a large payday for exclusive pictures of the newborn.

Martha Wainwright steps out from behind her family's shadow and soars!

By Mary Dickie
Contributing Writer

It's not that Martha Wainwright's 2005 debut wasn't everything it should have been: a collection of sharp-tongued, beautiful songs about her turbulent emotional history and relationships with dad Loudon Wainwright III, brother Rufus and mom Kate McGarrigle. It's just that the 32-year-old singer's follow-up is so good that it transcends genres and the famous family thing. On I Know You're Married but I've Got Feelings Too (MapleMusic Recordings/UMG), a brazenly confident Wainwright shows off her songwriting along with her larger-than-life voice, exploring desire, pain, fear and loss in 12 dazzling songs. "I came to this one as an artist rather than someone trying to emerge from the shadow of her family," she explains. "The first album was loaded in that way because that was my story. But on this one, I was able to shed those insecurities." Last year, Wainwright brought down the house with her sultry performance of Stormy Weather at her brother's recreation of Judy Garland's 1961 Carnegie Hall concert. "I see myself as much a singer as a songwriter," she says. "It's fun to get out from behind the guitar and sing a song as perfectly constructed as those standards are and have it be about the performance."

Fashion-Conscious

The world is not a simple place, as Sandy Black explores in Eco-Chic: The Fashion Paradox (Black Dog Books). Our desire for cheap clothes has built a booming global textile market that employs (and often exploits) nearly 30 million people. What Black makes us consider are the trade-offs: Are renewable materials, made from by-products of the oil industry, a better ethical buy than natural fabrics? She shows us how informed consumers who read labels and make ethical demands can push manufacturers into making clothes that are green and fashionable.

IN THE RAW

The skinny on the four most popular eco-friendly fabrics.

● Organic cotton Unlike regular cotton, which uses chemical defoliants and bleaching dyes, organic cotton is grown without pesticides or chemicals and its dyes are made from vegetable matter. ● Bamboo The latest eco-darling, bamboo creates velvety soft fabrics and is a hardy renewable resource. ● Hemp Banish all thoughts of hemp necklaces! Hemp can be used to create almost anything from purses to dresses. ● Soy Soy filters nitrogen from the air, which reduces greenhouse gas emissions and gives clothes a silky feel. Unlike synthetic materials, all organic fabrics can be easily composted and recycled.

● Use cold water. Your clothes will get just as clean at 5 C to 10 C. ● Avoid products with nonyl phenoxy ethoxylate (NPE), which has been linked to breast cancer and infertility. ● Use powder, not liquid, detergent — it requires fewer manufacturing processes. ● Add one tablespoon of baking soda and one teaspoon of vinegar to each load — you'll use less detergent and double your cleaning power. ● Choose a high-efficiency washer that uses less water and energy; you'll save on your hydro bill too!

Turbo volume

Vibrating mascara wands are latest innovation

Estée Lauder and Lancôme cosmetic companies are both set to launch mascaras with vibrating wands later this year.

COMING SOON to a makeup counter near you: Mascara that vibrates.

According to the global beauty brand Estée Lauder, which will launch TurboLash All Effects Motion Mascara for $30 this summer in the United States, and later this year in Canada, the innovation is designed to separate lashes and create volume at the base of the lash — an area often neglected.

Competitor Lancôme followed up with an announcement that it will release Oscillation this fall, with a brush that vibrates 7,000 times a minute and claims to provide 360-degree coverage of each lash.

Vibrating wands are just the latest innovation in the mascara market, which is worth an estimated $3.7 billion US globally. To capture some of this long, thick and very plump market, cosmetics companies are constantly introducing new variations on the theme of lash enhancement.

Battery-operated mascaras have been done before — one had an applicator that rotated and another was heated for smoother application — but neither innovation had staying power.

In a 2004 patent application for a vibrating mascara applicator, Estée Lauder argued its vibrating invention is significantly different from past products. So, could vibrating wands be the innovation that will create the lush lashes women long for? Or are they just another gimmick designed to up-sell consumers?

We asked makeup artist and beauty educator Dino Dilio for his opinion. And while he hasn't tried the product — samples aren't yet available in Canada — he is optimistic.

"I'm excited," he says, "because when I tell ladies to put on mascara, I tell them to hold the brush at the root and wiggle it. It builds up volume at the roots of the lashes. It seems like that's what this product would do, so I think it would be kinda cool. Everything is getting easier these days."

Ethical ingredients

LUSH Cosmetics is helping protect Sumatra's rain forest by producing soaps without palm oil.

Do you care about orangutans? LUSH Cosmetics, which provides handmade, natural products made from fruits and vegetables, is protecting Sumatra's rain forest, and the orangutan's habitat, by producing soaps without palm oil.

Soon, you'll be able to learn all about how the company sources its ingredients when you click on an item for sale on its website lush.ca.

Mark Wolverton, Vancouver-based president and CEO of LUSH North America, says he and his team of buyers travel the world armed with cameras to investigate and document the way ingredients are made. No products using child labour. No products produced in a conflict zone.

"We're unique. The niche we have is the front edge of handmade, natural, environmental, quality, treat-yourself stuff."

Although organic, natural or environmentally friendly cosmetics are less than five per cent of the Canadian market, it is an area that is fast-growing and shows much promise for future growth.

"People come to us because they want to support the environment," says Wolverton, adding that it also means "delivering a good, quality product that is not BS."

Sock and sandals faux pas

Odd menswear coupling being elevated to trend

PHOTOS BY PETER STIGTER/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

The S&S (socks and sandals) look has traditionally been a nerdy coupling, yet designers like Miuccia Prada are turning it into a fashion statement.

LONG DERIDED as the ultimate menswear misstep, wearing socks with sandals is being elevated to the status of fashion trend.

The S&S look, commonly worn by nerdy tourists, aging hippies, grunge musicians and outdoorsy types, was trotted out unabashedly during the spring menswear collections of designers like Miuccia Prada, Stefano Pilati for Yves Saint Laurent and Nicolas Ghesquiere for Balenciaga.

For fashionistas, this odd coupling of socks and sandals constitutes a particularly egregious type of male fashion crime and belongs in a category that includes flood pants, too-tight clothing, pinkie rings and fanny packs.

Nevertheless, a handful of truly directional fashion designers feels they have the clout to turn what's considered by many to be a lapse in judgment into something that approaches avant garde.

The look is loathed, particularly by women.

Toronto wardrobe stylist Georgia Groom, for one, is aghast.

"There is nothing remotely cool about the look. Even as an ironic fashion statement, it still makes me cringe. It's inelegant and, let's face it, it's not particularly virile.

"I can see how some cute kid could bust out the look but I'm not letting my boyfriend anywhere near it."

Popular sex-and-relationship blogger Isabella Snow has ordered dates to return home to change when they've showed up sporting the offending S&S combo.

"I think most of you do it because you think it looks good ... or at least normal," she writes.

"Let me tell you, this look is about as sexy as a pocket protector and horn-rimmed glasses. Unless you're a 10th grade algebra teacher, this look is inappropriate."

Check sandalandsoxer.co.uk for examples of men who have been captured on film in heavy work socks with Birkenstocks or black dress socks with Tevas.

Look up "socks and sandals" in the Urban Dictionary for a definition that's blunt. "A footwear combination worn only by the fashion-challenged.

"If it's hot enough for sandals, it's too hot to wear socks. If it's cold enough to wear socks, it's too cold for sandals."

60-something Jorgen Fleischer wears his socks and sandals proudly, despite the protests of his wife.

"Men's toes never look very nice," says the consultant engineer who lives in Walter's Falls, Ont. "They are not very appealing. Women dress their toes and take better care of them.

"My wife thinks it's uncool. But I don't know what's wrong with it."

Katrina aftermath leaves jazz legend Dr. John angry

By BRIAN TOWIE
Metro Toronto

The cameramen and newspeople who caught the devastation in New Orleans wrought by hurricane Katrina went home once the stories lived out their usefulness in the news cycle, but the poverty and homelessness remained among the people.

Good thing Dr. John did, too. The legendary jazz and soul man and Louisiana Music Hall of Fame inductee, who calls the birthplace of jazz his home, is mad as hell at what he considers a sweeping under the rug of evacuees still left displaced, destitute and defenceless in Katrina’s wake. It’s part of the reason why Dr. John (a.k.a. Mac Rebennack) is heading to Nathan Phillips Square for a concert tonight at 8 to perform songs from his latest album, The City That Care Forgot. With help on the record from the likes of Eric Clapton, and fellow New Orleanians, trumpeter Terence Blanchard and alt-folk singer Ani DiFranco, Dr. John tips his hat to the street-level volunteers who have taken the lion’s share of work in rebuilding the Big Easy.

“I’m very proud to say that New Orleans’ citizens have done more towards rebuilding the city than the city, state and federal governments put together,” says Dr. John, now 67, through a thick N’awlins drawl. “That’s what people do. That’s the spirit, the strength of the people of New Orleans.”

helping out

» Want to help out? Dr. John suggests checking out Rebuilding Together New Orleans. Go to prcno.org/programs/rebuilding together for more.

Dr. John sorrowfully details the tragedy of the Crescent City’s poor, people who were largely left to fend for themselves in the hurricane’s aftermath, who now live in tent cities beneath the street and highway overpasses. All the while, tourists carouse in the French Quarter and oil rigs drill in the nearby gulf as the shoreline rises. It’s a situation that revolts Dr. John, who views it as an attempt to drive lower-income Cajun, Creole and Afro-American citizens out and let the wealthy take their place.

“I find it completely disgusting,” he says. “Doesn’t anybody care about people? Is money the only thing that counts? Out of all the billions that got sent to New Orleans from all over the world, not one dime of it got sent to the people who really needed it. They’re trying to destroy and disrespect the culture. Something really stinks, and, of course, no one is going to be held responsible.”

Dr. John says he’s pleased to perform north of the border, noting Canadians were the first to arrive on the scene to help after Katrina hit. He credits part of the involvement to the cultural connection between Cajuns in the south and Acadians in the north.

“A lot of the Cajun culture has come from Canada, and the help and understanding that has been given by the Canadians, over and over, has been a blessing,” says Dr. John. “We were very touched by that. Any time people can relate to people, on any level, I’m for it.”

» Dr. John and The Wild Magnolias will be at Nathan Phillips Square tonight at 8 as part of the TD Canada Trust Toronto Jazz Festival, which runs until June 29. Tickets ($40) are available at www.ticketmaster.ca or 416-870-8000.

Jazz fest returns

Attendance expected to top 500,000 this year

By ROBB McKAY
for Metro Toronto

Organizers of Toronto's top jazz festival have worked tirelessly over the past several years to shed the genre's stuffy image while balancing the demands of traditional fans.

"We are always looking for a younger audience, a newer audience," says executive producer and CEO Patrick Taylor. "It is very important that we offer a lot of quality free shows and a lot of affordable shows."

The TD Canada Trust Toronto Jazz Festival, which kicks off today and runs through June 29, offers a range of musical styles that Taylor says is the most diverse in the 22-year history of downtown event. Some of the jazz world's biggest names — including Oliver Jones, Roy Hargrove and John Scofield — join a strong lineup of artists from other genres including funk, soul, gospel and world music.

Presenting a program that balances jazz's traditional base and the new ground it explores is a challenge that the festival's artistic director Jim Galloway has worked toward over the last two decades.

"What's happened is jazz music has absorbed a lot of the other popular forms and they in turn have borrowed from jazz — so you get this real melding of the things and what it does is it makes it a lot more difficult to define what the music is," Galloway says.

"At the end of the day, if you go out and you hear something and you enjoy it, hey, who cares what the label is?"

Making jazz music more inclusive and reaching new audiences are key goals of the organizers, according to Taylor.

Only a handful of the 350 scheduled concerts are priced more than $30 and festival-goers are encouraged to sample new jazz sounds at free lunchtime and afternoon concerts taking place at Nathan Phillips Square. Additionally, those who prefer to fuse jazz with nightlife can take part in the festival's club series, which will see a handful of venues extend their last call for alcohol until 4 a.m.

It would appear the festival organizer's strategy is working. Recent survey results suggest that over the past eight years, the average age of the festival attendee has dropped from 57 down to 38, with overall attendance expected to top 500,000 this year.

Taylor says longtime jazz fans needn't worry though. Even though the appeal of jazz is on the rise — and has lost legends such as Oscar Peterson — the genre's standards remain high and are represented by the top-notch musicians from around the world who come to Toronto each year to perform.

"In its early days, jazz used to fit under a small umbrella and now it needs a huge golf umbrella because the music changes as art forms do — but the tradition is also there," added Galloway.

Tollar thrives on diversity

By BRIAN TOWIE
Metro Toronto

Maryem Tollar is ready to rock like an Egyptian.

Well, maybe rock isn't the right term. Call it a stew of jazz, pop, folk and world beat with traditional Middle Eastern Berber music that the Toronto-based Egyptian-Canadian is bringing to the Glen Gould Studio on Sunday. Taking pieces of different musical cultures and blending them with her own to create something new is the vocalist's modus operandi. Tollar says she thrives on diversity.

"I do like to take a little piece of this and that," she says. "We're doing a repertoire with a lot of traditional Arabic elements in it. I used to do pop and folk music, so it's kind of a fusion of all of that."

The projects on which she works range as wide as her influences: You might have heard her work, for example, on the theme to the CBC show Little Mosque On The Prairie or even the Dora-nominated singer's performances in operas Constantinople or Sepulcher Of Life. The "world music" theme is throughout her work, though she feels it's not the fairest nomenclature.

"Every piece of music you do belongs somewhere in the world," she says. "But I guess it kind of fits because when people hear that, they assume it's going to have some sort of element to it they might not have heard."

» Maryem and Ernie Tollar will play the Glenn Gould Studio Sunday at 8 p.m. as part of the TD Canada Trust Jazz Festival. For more information, visit www.maryemtollar.com.

‘I’m going to riff on everything’

Bernhard won’t hold back for show

By BRIAN TOWIE
Metro Toronto

Sandra Bernhard is coming to Toronto, and no one is safe.

The New York-based author, singer and actress of stage and screen will be busy when she arrives here for Pride Week to host the Pride Toronto Gala & Awards on June 24. She’s also coming to unleash her new comedy show Plan B From Outer Space at Massey Hall on Sunday — an act where nothing will be spared from her brand of caustic humour.

“It’s really improvisational,” adds Bernhard, 53. “I’m going to just riff on everything, and I’m going to cover a lot of swaths in my life.”

Canada Customs agents may be particular targets for her barbs. Bernhard has no love for them after she claims she was harassed because she was a single parent crossing the border with her 10-year-old daughter. You can certainly count on a healthy dose of American political satire. A recent article on hour.ca has Bernhard calling U.S. Senator Hillary Clinton “an ass” because of her smear campaign against fellow Democrat, Senator Barack Obama.

“I think the Clintons played a really crummy game,” says Bernhard. “No matter how badly you want to win at something, you always want to keep your party unified, especially in the times we’re living in, when it’s so ‘make or break.’”

The actress, famous for her role as a lesbian on sitcom Roseanne from 1991-97, knows what being an outsider truly means. She spent much of her childhood growing up Jewish in the predominantly WASP-y town of Scottsdale, Ariz., and used her experiences as fodder for material, working the male-dominated comedy club circuits in the 1970s.

“I haven’t always played that showbiz game, and therefore you don’t always get what you want,” she says on her work. “But I think I’ve gotten everything I’ve ever wanted and I continue to, at least from an artistic level, which is most important for me.”

» Sandra Bernhard will be at Massey Hall on Sunday at 8 p.m. Tickets ($25-$75) are available at 416-870-8000 or online at www.ticketmaster.ca and www.masseyhall.com. Exclusive Meet & Greet tickets ($150 each) include VIP seating and a champagne and dessert reception with the star.

TSO goes galactic with Star Trek

TV show's tunes get orchestral treatment

By BRAIN TOWIE
Metro Toronto

Concert Q AND DR. ZIMMERMAN are helping the Toronto Symphony Orchestra go intergalactic.

Led by distinguished conductor Erich Kunzel of the Cincinnati Pops Orchestra — who guest-helmed the TSO when it played the Star Wars Concert about three years ago — the orchestra will play selections from the science fiction phenomenon's bellicose television and movie themes. Music will include Alexander Courage's theme from the original series, the opening theme from Star Trek: Voyager and Dennis McCarthy's scores from Star Trek: The Next Generation.

Both John de Lancie (famous for his role as Q in Star Trek: TNG, DS9 and Voyager) and Robert Picardo (who played The Doctor on Star Trek: Voyager) will be on hand to co-host the show, which runs tonight and tomorrow at 8.

"The audience will at least be intimidated into having a splendid time by Q, the most powerful being in the universe," laughs Picardo. "It is a particular delight for Star Trek fans, but the music is a standalone delight whether you're a Trek fan or not. And you don't often get to see a hologram in a tuxedo."

de Lancie

Picardo

Picardo and de Lancie (himself the son of a composer and classical music buff) will narrate the concert, recounting the stories behind the music.

"People who aren't fans of the show will say, 'I recognize the music, but I had no idea about all these other things that took place," says de Lancie. "And the people who know it, they're going to listen to this music not out of a little speaker, but in a big symphony hall with a 100-piece orchestra."

A bonus for Trek fans — the pair will share personal anecdotes (some of them may even be blue, but you'll have to wait and see, Picardo warns) from life on the shows. Both actors have much in common, playing non-human roles on the series — Picardo as a medical hologram in search of its own humanity and de Lancie as an all-powerful trickster forming part of the god-like Q Continuum.

"All you have to worry about, when you're spewing information, you cannot say any of the following: Um, well, uh, or y'know?" says Picardo of his role on set. "You speak in complete paragraphs, which as you might notice I already do. So it wasn't as difficult for me in some ways."

To prepare for his role as an omnipotent and sinister cosmic being, de Lancie took another approach.

"There's no better job on Earth. I regularly walk on water and jump buildings in a single bound," he laughs. "I played Q as omnipotent, but with feet of clay: He can easily be toppled over. On one episode the Q Continuum took my powers away. I'm glad they gave them back because playing a human was no fun at all."

Metro Toronto

Profile THE ONCE-LOWLY burger has been revamped and renovated on countless fine dining menus lately, from the gilded burgers offered at Mark McEwan's Bymark and One, to Trevor Wilkinson's trio of little Kobe sliders at Trevor Kitchen and Bar. Its simple form and popularity makes it a kind of gold standard by which ambitious chefs can showcase their skills, not only at cooking, but at presentation and sourcing of ingredients. The burger has become the culinary version of the sportscar, available in almost every price range.

Mustafa Yusuf's Craft Burger opened a year ago just a stumble away from Susur Lee's twin eateries and Marc Thuet's Bistro on King Street West.

Yusuf had spent his adult life working his way up from a dishwasher at the Keg to the manager of its $5-million-dollar-a-year London location before moving on to operations manager at The Drake when it opened. He had an idea, however, for a stripped-down burger bar where the lack of frills and extras would allow him to offer the best patty in the price range, and bought the King West business where Craft Burger would open.

"This neighbourhood has all these huge offices and businesses," he recalled, "and there was a need for a good burger joint. You have your McDonald's and all that down the street, but there was a ton of people, and we've been getting business at dinner now because of all the condo dwellers coming in looking for a bite."

The menu is straightforward — a half-dozen or so burgers, ranging from a cheeseburger and a spicy burger to the top-flight organic patty from the nearby Healthy Butcher, with a select group of sides and toppings, and an even more basic choice of drinks, including a famously rich milkshake and Boylan's sugar cane-sweetened sodas. The storefront is narrow and compact, and take-out business is encouraged.

RICK McGINNIS/METRO TORONTO

Mustafa Yusuf's Craft Burger opened a year ago on King Street West.

It's also a damn fine burger — the Healthy Butcher organic patty tastes like real meat, with an almost gamey hint, and the hand-cut fries are some of the best in the city. Yusuf doesn't want to confuse his customers with too much choice when volume is the order of the day, and he's happy to let the product speak for itself.

"The burger is a traditional food that everyone's used to, that they can do in their backyard. We do everything fresh — no fillers. We carry an organic burger from literally down the street — it's the simple factor for us."

Jennifer vs. Jennifer?

Feuding beauties: Jennifer Aniston allegedly threatened to pull out of a magazine photo shoot if co-star Jennifer Connelly joined her on the front cover, femalefirst.co.uk reports.

The actress had agreed to appear in a new issue of Marie Claire magazine to promote the movie He's Just Not That Into You but reportedly didn't want Connelly featured in the main photographs. However, Aniston was happy to pose alongside other female co-stars Drew Barrymore and Ginnifer Goodwin.

"She threatened to pull out if Jennifer was part of the cover. It was all about getting Jennifer Aniston front and centre and looking as sexy as possible," a source told Life And Style Weekly magazine.

Insiders on the movie set claim the two Jennifers didn't hit it off while working together. "There was no camaraderie between those two whatsoever. They didn't seem like friends in the slightest," a source said.

Aniston's representative has denied the story, insisting the two actresses became friends on the movie and the magazine requested she pose alone. METRO NEWS SERVICES

But despite speculation Disney bosses are lining up Gomez as a replacement, she insists there is no tension between the pair. "We're literally like, 'It's fine. It's all good.' She's Miley and I'm Selena," Gomez said. METRO NEWS SERVICES

Farrell sporting wedding ring

MARRIED? Colin Farrell has sparked speculation he is married after he was spotted wearing a wedding ring, femalefirst.co.uk reports.

The actor was seen sporting a band on the ring finger of his left hand at Los Angeles' LAX airport, leading to claims he has tied the knot with girlfriend Muireann McDonnell, reports say.

"He didn't seem to be hiding the ring. Maybe he has finally found the girl he wants to settle down with," an onlooker said.

Farrell met the student last year and recently spoke about his love for her.

"I met her in Dublin while I was home from Los Angeles," Farrell says. "She's a great girl, we're really happy. It's easy to find girls, but it's not easy to find the right one."
